REJU - FRACTIONING CO2

Fractional CO2 laser

Principle

The fractional CO2 laser system uses a laser beam that is fractioned - divided into numbers of microscopic beams, generating tiny points or fractional areas of the treatment within the selected target area. Therefore, the heat of the laser passes only through the chosen - selected application area. This allows the skin to heal much more quickly in the entire area that was treated with fractional pixilation. A process that allows to obtain a smoothing of the skin. As a self-resurfacing, generating a large amount of own collagen, resulting in a rejuvenation of the skin, so that the skin will eventually look much healthier and younger.

Private treatment tips.

Fractional head scar and wrinkle removal.

Cutting head burning, punching and incising.
